PAUL LOGSDON, JR.

Logsdon To Fill State CSTA Office

Paul Logsdon Jr. was elected by the Sacramento College Chapter of the California Student Teachers Association to the office of vice-president for the state-wide CSTA organization. This organization is composed of more than 3,000 members from thirty-two teacher training institutions throughout California.

Logsdon, a graduate of Maxwell High School, Colusa County, and Yuba Junior College, is working for his general secondary teaching credential at State College. He is now a junior majoring in biological science.

Logsdon is the treasurer of the BASS Club and is also treasurer of the Junior Class. He will take the office of State CSTA vice-president April 13 at Asilomar at the state CSTA convention. The term of office will last for one year.

HORNET CUT IN HALF

Today's HORNET, as you have undoubtedly noticed, is of a new size, not seen since the summer session editions of our college paper. The size of the previous issues of this semester is the regular tabloid size. However, for purposes of make-up, compactness, and a cut in the budget, it was decided to try this smaller size.

Club Heads Plan SSC Jamboree Carnival-Dance

Presidents and representatives of various campus organizations met last Tuesday evening to consider plans for the Student Loan Fund Drive. A Jamboree to be held on April 20, following a week long activities schedule, will be the climax of the drive.

The Jamboree, which was also held last year in connection with the drive, will consist of a dance and carnival. Campus clubs and organizations are planning the Jamboree and will have concessions for the carnival part of the event. The affair will be held in the women's gym on the junior college campus.

At last Tuesday night's joint meeting and pot luck dinner, preliminary plans for the Jamboree were started. The various organizations represented were: MENC, Lavonne Johnson; Newman Club, Annabelle Mooney and Bill Isherwood; CSTA, Mary Jo Pegenaute and Harry Leafe; WAA, Alice Lemos; Junior Class, Marian Schleicher; Buzz Club, Joan Mathews and George Woodhouse; IDG, Al Yelvington; Senior Class, Bob Ledbetter; Campus Y, Bill Wright and Anne Morrison; Theta Epsilon, Irma Sturgill; ACS, Chet Gordon and W. Wernsman Wins Press Presidency

Gloria Wernsman, society editor for the HORNET and a language arts major in her junior year at Sacramento State, was elected to the presidency of the California Intercollegiate Press Association at the association's recent convention in Santa Barbara, California.

Miss Wernsman, who attended this year's convention as one of the delegates from Sacramento State, writes the State College activities column in the Sacramento Union and at one time reported college news for a local radio station. Her interest in journalism has been a decided influence in her college career, and she has continuously been active in some phase of journalistic work.

At the present time, Miss Wernsman is working for her general secondary teaching credential. Her extra-curricular activities include membership in the Sacramento College Press Club, Newman Club, Buzz Club and Sigma Iota Chi sorority.

Other officers elected at the Santa Barbara convention include: Bob Barnes from Los Angeles State College, first vice president, and Kerry Kerin from Long Beach State College, second vice-president.

SSC Offers Excellent Cast In O'Neill Play

Next Friday night Sacramento State College dramatists will present the first performance of 'Ah, Wilderness' in the junior college auditorium at 8:15. 'Ah, Wilderness', a comedy concerning American family life, is perhaps one of Eugene O'Neill's most well known plays and the one most frequently chosen by amateur theatrical groups for presentation.

Charles V. Hume, assistant professor of speech, will direct the SSC production of the play and Bob Wyman will play the leading role, that of Richard. Richard is a typical American boy about whose actions and problems the story of the play centers. Others in the cast will include: Nat Miller, played by John Hume; Essie, May Gleason; Arthur, Charles Evans; Lily Miller, Diane Honodel; Mildred, Vicki Cottle; Tommy, Sidney Smith; Sid Davis, Dale Flewelling; David McComber, John Ickes; Nora, Evelyn Salvi; Wint, Wayne Shrope; Belle, Mary Louise Krier; Bartender, Durwood Swinehart; Salesman, John Mendonca; and Muriel McComber, Donna Reagon.

The technical staff of the production will include: Patricia Judge assistant to the director; Wayne Shrope, stage manager; Ernie Jones, lighting technician; William Morgan, sound effects; Durward Swinehart, Sr., ticket sales; Tom Wittsche, house manager; Avalon Barusch, properties; and a properties committee consisting of James Hardy, William Rase, and Shirley Kronick.

Chuck Bartl is in charge of publicity.

Set designs and constructions are under the direction of Paul Beckman, assistant professor of art. Costumes will be rented from Goldsteins in San Francisco. Tickets for the play, which will be presented two evenings, Friday and Saturday, may be purchased from members of the drama department. The price of admission is sixty cents to the general public, free (except for tax) to student body card holders.

ADVANCE AT YOUR OWN RISK

Nine journalism students recently represented Sacramento State at the conference of the California Intercollegiate Press Association in Santa Barbara. At this conference Sacramento State fell heir to the presidency of the association with the election of Gloria Wernsman to that position. It is a great honor for Sacramento State College to add to its ever increasing greatness the prestige of having the presidency of this organization on our campus.

Schools, no matter how great they might be, are in many instances judged by the spirit behind the institution. The fact that a school has an outstanding football or basketball team, or that a school excels in dramatic productions, can often be the factor in creating fame and a name for that school.

Sacramento State has talent which can be directed in many fields of endeavor. Sacramento State can, in the future, earn for itself a high position in the ranks of outstanding California colleges. I say that it "can" . . . but will it be able to? It will not, unless, to put it tritely, but significantly, all students put their shoulders to the wheel; a wheel that could easily slip and roll backwards, as well as turn forward towards a brighter future!

Sacramento State was founded for YOU! It was founded in order that students in the vicinity of Sacramento and area could continue their education at home, thus eliminating the high cost of going away to school. Fine instructors have been employed to teach YOU, and a beautiful new campus is being planned for YOU and those who will follow you.

One way or another, united we stand, divided we fall! It is up to YOU, the students of Sacramento State College, to decide which it will be. Let's make it united!

The business office is open daily from 8:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m., ready to sell you your student association card in order that you may show your appreciation to the founders of OUR college and fulfill your obligation to YOUR school!

If you are not a member of the student association, don't neglect this obligation any longer! Join today!

God's Electric Chair

Little Johnny was mighty proud of the Bible he had been awarded for attending church every Sunday for an entire year without missing once.

He was just a little shaver, with brown curly hair and a pug nose sprinkled with freckles, but he had a philosophy that set me a thinkin!

One Sunday morning after church, I asked him why he thought it was so important to go to church every Sunday, and he said:

"Well, the way I look at it's this a'way. We know that God gave us the Ten Commandments, and the third one on the list is 'Remember thou keep holy the Lord's day'. Right?

I nodded affirmatively.

"Well, God musta thought that was pretty important," he continued, "to put it so far up on the list . . . even before 'Thou shalt not kill' . . . and you'd never think of breaking that commandment, would ya?"

"No sir," I said, amazed at his reasoning.

"Well," he said thoughtfully, "the police'll give ya the electric chair for breaking that law, an that's God's fifth commandment, and since not to go to church would be breaking God's third commandment, which to Him must be more important, I figure that God's got something even worse than the electric chair for people who break that law."

You know, I think he's got something there!

The Council Speaks

By Ben Leafe

A bill is coming before the senate, introduced by Senator Hoffman, to make Student Body Funds compulsory.

A meeting was held on Sunday, March 4, to appropriate the money to the various commissioners. Of an approximate $3100, the appropriations were as follows:

Athletics	$1485
Social Activities	200
Salaries	150
General fund	30
Drama	182
Music	50
Statesman	600
Hornet	600
Total	$3298

This semester's budget was a very unfortunate piece of business for the STATESMAN, HORNET, and Athletics, had all committed themselves for activities beyond the amounts given them by the budget committee.

Because the Student Body fund has hit an unfortunate low this semester, the faculty is being asked to purchase Student Body Cards. Upon buying four of these cards in succession, honorary membership will be given these members of the faculty. It is unfortunate that this added expense has been asked of the faculty. The fault really lies in the poor participation of the student body in the purchase of Student Body cards.

This week will wind up all pictures to be taken which will appear in the STATESMAN. Any club or activity that wishes to be represented in the STATESMAN must contact Ben Leafe before the week is over. In the meantime, subscriptions are still being sold for this book at the main arch on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, during the noon hour.

By the way, it is not too late to buy that Student Body card.

EXCERPT

From the San Francisco Trumpeter, January 1951, by Drew Hawsed, in the column entitled:

"THE BOOKSHELF"

"Mother Lode Gold Mining Stories," by C. M. Goethe, is the first in a series of pamphlets to be issued by the Sacramento State College. It contains a group of tales of the 1850s, gathered along the Sierra's famous Lode through personal interviews with the real old-timers by the author. Some of the places which inspired the stories are Pokerville, Sutter Creek, Donkeyville, Bedbug, Jesus Maria, Slumgullion, Liar's Flat, Columbia, Pinchmetight and Yankee Jim's. The story of the desolated Converse Basin, with its preachment for saving the Redwoods, it set forth tellingly.

The illustrated stories, humorous and full of folklore local color, are from the author's book, 'What's In a Name?' A sketch map of the Mother Lode region adds interest.

CIVIC THEATER NOW PRESENTING 'SUMMER AND SMOKE' AT EAGLET

"Summer and Smoke" by Tennessee Williams is currently being offered by the Sacramento Civic Repertory in the Eaglet Theater, 1419 H Street. The production opened Wednesday evening and will continue through Saturday.

ABOUT THE PLAY

The play is basically the tense, dramatic love story of two people whose lives drift past each other in opposite directions. It concerns a very masculine and worldly man who falls in love with a delicate and somewhat suppressed woman. They have known each other from childhood but have been brought up with quite different ideas of life. Brooks Atkinson writes of the play: "The insight into character is almost unbearably lucid. Williams is a writer of superb grace and allusiveness, always catching the shape and sound of ideas rather than their literal meaning."

BURDICK DIRECTS

Richard Burdick, well known to Sacramentans for his work as a director as well as an actor, is directing Summer And Smoke. He will be remembered most recently for his direction of Born Yesterday, the first play on the repertory group's present play series.

SSC'er HAS LEAD

Diane Honodel and Norman Katen, familiar to repertory theater audiences, will be seen in the leading roles. Others in the cast include J. Franklyn Davis, Virginia Masten, Patricia Cole, Yvonne Todd, Al DeMartin, Frank Russell, Twila Bartlett, Jeanne DeVivier, Michael Powell, Byron Conklin and Marne Bass.

The unusual set for the play has been designed by John Miller.

TICKET INFO

Tickets are on sale at the Civic Theater Box Office in Sherman, Clay and Company, 1312 K Street. Tickets also may be obtained at the door of the Eaglet Theater on the night of the performance. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. There is a special student rate.

FIRST NIGHTER REVIEW

"Summer and Smoke," a play by Tennessee Williams, opened a four night run at the Eaglet Theater Wednesday night. SSC student, Diane Honodel, has her best role to date in this Williams play. I saw the opening night performance and in my opinion Miss Honodel also does her best job to date! In the role of the minister's daughter, Alma Winemiller, she has probably undertaken her most difficult role in her acting career and gives the role a fine professional touch.

Opposite Miss Honodel in the role of John Buchanan, Jr., Norman Katen presents a natural, and equally professional touch to his role. The entire cast did an excellent job,

Marian Anderson Concert Slated

Marian Anderson, world-famous contralto, will appear at the Sacramento Memorial Auditorium on Wednesday evening, March 14th, in a concert presented on the Saturday Club Celebrity Series.

Shortly after she celebrated the fifteenth anniversary of her memorable return to America on December 30, 1935, Miss Anderson opened her sixteenth consecutive concert tour in Cleveland. She preceded her current tour with a series of concerts in Europe and South America. In London, 9,000 persons packed Royal Albert Hall for a single concert as 1,200 music lovers who had stood in line all day filled the narrow benches in the organ gallery behind the stage.

In June, the singer boarded a ship in Genoa and went directly to South America, where she gave 25 concerts from July until September. To fill the ticket demand, Miss Anderson gave four concerts in Rio de Janeiro, four in Sao Paulo, three in Montevido, and seven in Buenos Aires.

She has performed some 800 concerts before more than four million listeners in 300 cities in 44 states. Her current itinerary will bring her back home at the end of April.

The concert will be the sixth event on the Saturday Club Celebrity Series. Tickets are on sale in the Civic Theater Box Office, Sherman Clay & Company.

ciative audience. Mr. Bernstein, a young but purposeful conductor, showed much spirit before this celebrated group of musicians. Indeed, gestrations varied from the subtle arm movements of a Monteux to the frenzy of an Apache dancer.

The program began with the "Star Spangled Banner" and was immediately followed by the Israel national anthem, "Hatikvah," played as the people of Sacramento had never heard it played before.

Next on the program was Haydn's "Symphony No. 88 in G Major," and then Oedon Partos played selections from his composition, "Song of Praise for Viola and Orchestra." This selection is a beautiful piece of work and the solo artist played his masterpiece in a deft and precise manner.

The program ended with the "Symphony No. 2 in C Major," by Schuman.

Hornet Tracksters Slate First Meet Tomorrow at 2 P.M.

Hornet thinclads, coached by former track star Aubrey Bates, began their initial workouts under wet weather conditions, but hope to round into running, jumping, hurdling and throwing shape by the first meet March 10th in Hughes Stadium.

This meet will bring together the Sacramento Jr. College Panthers vs. San Mateo J. C. with the Hornets competing, not in a "points" competitive role, but merely for competition's sake and an attempt to further their conditioning with the ultimate goal of being in top-notch shape for the Modesto Relays later in the year.

Bates admits having the nucleus of a strong squad, but needs additional candidates for several of the events, notably the pole vault, the weight events and the sprints.

Paul Wham and Phil Wright seem certain point winners in the hurdles and sprints. Jack Clarke and Art Zimmerman can also pick them up and lay them down in the short dashes.

Denny Anderson and Phil Oaks are likely point getters in the shot and javelin, while the long winded tracksters, Dave Barnes, Jack Tucker, Ray Weisker and Bill Mumma should go places in the distance events.

Don Prisk will attempt to soar over the six foot mark in the high jump. Pole vault, broad jump and sprint candidates must fill the weak spots. Coach Bates, who knows track form and conditioning to the nth degree, topes for an enlarged turnout for a sport that is lots of fun, great competition and is a great body and leg conditioner.

An interesting slate of track meets has been arranged for this season. Although admittedly working with a small squad and limited facilities, Coach Bates confidently expects to field a strong squad by the date of the first official scoring and competitive meet.

The schedule at follows:
Mar. 10—Sacto J.C. and San Mateo
Mar. 17—Sacto J.C. and Yuba Coll.
Mar. 24—To be filled.
April 3—Chico State
April 20—Santa Rosa, there*
April 28—U. of Nevada, there.

Sports Keyhole

Last issue, Harvey wandered off, but he has now returned and with his aid, I will continue the Sports Keyhole. When I asked the giant "Puka" where he had been for two weeks, he was quite evasive, but after pulling one of his long ears and denying him his usual ration of invisible onion and carrot juice, he broke down and confessed. It seems as though Harvey had wandered off to Kezar Gym in San Francisco and had been having a lot of fun standing under the Hornets' basket and unobtrusively directing the basketball into the basket. When I asked him how come he wasn't there during the Oakland Blue 'N Gold game, he said he was, but only for the first half. It seems as though "Chuck" Hanger, the towering Oakland center, stepped on Harvey's foot when scuffling under the basket and Harvey had to retire during the second half, whereby many State shots went astray that Harvey could have easily directed into the basket.

Oh well, Harvey's only a dumb animal . . . I must have patience.

SSC Cagers Great Against Double Tough Schedule

Sacramento State College, despite a classy and "double tough" schedule, wound up the season with eight victories and thirteen losses.

Four of these losses, notably to C.O.P., San Francisco State and Denver, were by the margin of two points or less. With a little more luck, height and better rebounding, Coach Conrad could have come up with a .500 mark, which would have been nothing short of sensational considering the calibre of the opposition.

The Nevada, St. Mary's, San Francisco State, Y.M.I.; these home victories were well played and contested right down to the final minutes.

Most noteworthy in this regard, was seeing little Frankie Perez sink the game winning basket from forty feet out in the very last second of play against Nevada. The great Denver Chevvies having to stall out the last four minutes of their game against the Hornets, barely ekeing out a two-point victory.

The best defensive college player in Northern California, Irv Schwall, holding the potential All-American Kev Duggan to a scant 12 points when that worthy had been averaging 24 to 32 points against other bay area teams! Carl Youngstrom's deadly shooting. If the guy had a good pair of pins, HE would be All-American material.

Bob Steen's consistent scoring and pet play around the back of the basket and in front to score. Dick Galvin's long, accurate field goals. Regis Hurley's general all around excellence. Johnny Sarvis and his excellent pivot playing. Frank Perez, unfatiguable bundle of scoring energy.

Plus the speedy Bill Mumma, left handed Bob Greene, team spirited Del Bandy and the ever present, loyal and hard working manager, the colorful "Honk" Williams.

Last but not least, the big boy himself, Al McFayden, the 220-lb. pivot man and play maker. Al, who potentially was a high scoring player and who made many personal sacrifices to play with the club, simply could not "hit" this year. No one felt the absence of his scoring punch more than Al, and yet the big boy was a great competitor and play maker.

We sincerely hope Al is back with the team next fall and is able to show that a really great basketball player lurks within that massive but easy going frame.

In closing, may we again extend our congratulations to the Hornet basketball team of 1950-51 season, for numerous sporting thrills, plus "well done" to Coach Warren 'Fox' Conrad, for a superb coaching job.

Oakland Blue 'N Gold Cagers Display Too Many Guns For Fighting Hornets In San Francisco Examiner Tourney

KEVIN DUGGAN, EX- S. F. STATE SCORING STAR ADDED TO OAKLAND ROSTER, TANKS 18 POINTS TO PACE TEAM

Coach Warren Conrad's fighting Hornets bowed out of the San Francisco Examiner sponsored Pacific Association Basketball Tournament in dropping a 66 to 46 decision to the star-studded Blue 'N Gold Nuggets of Oakland, played in the Kezar gymnasium Tuesday night, after advancing to the third round. Playing under the sponsorship of the Golden Eagle Oil Co. of Sacramento, both the Hornets and/or "Eagles" were outclassed and outscored by the opposition. Despite having three ex All-American caggers in their lineup, Voss, Hangar and Minor, the Nuggets took out additional insurance in adding a potential All-American, the sensational two handed hook shot artist, Kevin Duggan, former San Francisco State high scorer. Did they fear our Hornets?

State's usual smooth ball control game and excellent floorwork were still in evidence, but their all-season weakness, lack of height and poor rebounding, cost the Hornets any chance against the towering, alert Oakland club. 'Tipins,' whereby the tall player tips the ball into the basket with a gentle flick of the wrist while other players vainly scramble below the basket, contributed to the Oakland victory. The tipin is the hardest shot in basketball to stop and the easiest and cheapest way to score on a rebound.

The Hornets, all year long, have not had the height to score over a dozen points in this fashion, but have scored the hard earned way, through smooth play patterns and quick scoring breaks inside the Key.

Old Deadeye, Carl Youngstrom, led the Hornets with eleven points, followed by Bob Steen and Irv Schwall, who bucketed nine and eight points respectively. Little Frankie Perez, usually good for 12 to 18 points per game, was all but "shut out" by the towering defense of the Nuggets, hitting for only two points.

Ward Healey and Kevin Duggan were strictly poison, scoring a total of 39 points between them. Coach Conrad cleaned the bench in attempting to throttle the Oakland attack, but it was like trying to stop a tank with a rifle for all the Hornet mentor's valiant efforts.

Leaving the floor at the half, the Hornets were still in the ball game, trailing only by five points, 26 to 21. But with the beginning of the second half, the big guns of the Oaklanders started to boom and there remained no doubt of the outcome as the game drew to its ending.

The game wrote finis to the basball season for the Hornet caggers. They won their share of an extremely tough schedule, playing many of the outstanding teams on the West Coast. Often outmanned and outreached, they were seldom outplayed. Hornet fans were well rewarded by the excellence and closeness of the home games and will undoubtedly be back for more next season.

We hope Coach Conrad will again schedule outstanding teams for the coming year, as the fans have now had their sporting appetites savoring the best in coast basketball and probably will not settle for less.

Coach Aubrey Bates also deserves a coaching orchid for the fine results and winning record of the J.V.'s, who were also handicapped by a lack of height but outran and outscored the opposition.

The box score and lineups:

Golden Eagle (46)		Blue-N-Golds (66)
Steen (9)	F	(9) Hanger
Perez (2)	F	(18) Duggan
McFayden (5)	C	(4) Voss
Schwall (8)	G	(2) Minor
Hurley (3)	G	(8) Collins

Substitutes: Golden Eagles—Youngstrom (11), Bandy, Greene, Mumma (2), Sarvis, Galvin (6), Gwinn. Blue-N-Golds—Healy (21), Chavalos (4).
